■ TERRY FOX RUN: Football players remember coach

'He was a mentor to us'

PORT COLBORNE — "He was a mentor to us," said Justin Romanyk, remembering the coach who won the Port Hope Blue Beets to a 2008 high school football championship, head coach Chris Cairns.

"He was our inspiration. He meant a lot."

The coach died in August at the age of 53 after a four-year battle with cancer.

"Winning that championship was something we will never forget," Romanyk added.

"It was the best thing that could have happened," team member Jason Chesiak said.

Team members shaved their heads four years ago when Cairns lost his hair to cancer treatment. Last Sunday, they did it again.

But this time, they were among 58 people who shaved their heads at the stage at L.H.业 Park in Lakeside Park to kick off the Terry Fox Run, a feat that set a Guinness World Record, organizers said.

Community rallies around Martinez clan

FROM PAGE A1

She recalled the day she first learned about what was happening to her friends and neighbours, the Martinez family.

Gardiner said her seven-year-old daughter came home a few weeks ago, crying that her friend Carlos Jr. would soon be leaving for Mexico.

Gardiner soon learned the Martinez family was being deported.

But Gardiner and her neighbours couldn't let that happen without doing something to try to stop the deportation.

"The family has been a wonderful part of our community," she said at a neighbourhood rally they organized last Sunday at Hubberstone Park.

"We are here to see if we can somehow get people to open their hearts and show compassion for the family, and for the government to be compassionate, in this case, to let the family stay."

The family applied to remain in Canada, concerned about their safety if they were forced to return to Mexico, where thousands of innocent people are falling victim to drug-related violence.

Immigration Canada turned down their request saying the Mexican government was taking steps to ensure the safety of its citizens, and ordered the family's deportation.

But the violence in Mexico isn't the only reason the Martinez family wants to stay in Port Colborne. For Marisol Martinez, Port Colborne is a second home.

The Martinez family, from left Socorro Castillo, Carlos Jr., Marisol Martinez, and children Carlos Jr. and Luna, are being deported from Canada in two weeks. Friends and neighbours held a rally Sunday in the hope of drawing support to allow the family to stay in Port Colborne.

Her sister Lucero Talving has lived in Port Colborne for nearly 10 years, along with Canadian Leo Talving. During those years, Marisol spent months at a time staying with her sister in Port Colborne.

A few years ago, Marisol, her husband, Carlos, and their two children moved to Port Colborne, along with Marisol's now 79-year-old mother Socorro Castillo, so the family could be together once again.

They're already started re-building their lives here. Carlos is working at a local shave shop. And since arriving in Canada, they had another child, a daughter named Luna.

Talving said "love" is the real motivation that brought them together. And love is also the main reason they want to stay together, living in Port Colborne.

Carlos asked the community for "opening your hearts" to his family, and Marisol said the support they have shown has given the family strength and hope.

Castillo was also touched by the efforts of her neighbours in Port Colborne to help the family remain here.

"They have big hearts," she said.

Welland MP Malcolm Allen told the rally participants that his office has been actively working on the families immigration case for quite some time.

As recently as late Friday afternoon, he said his office staff sent a letter and called the office of Jason Kenney, Canada's minister of citizenship, immigration and multiculturalism, asking him to personally look into the case, and to stop the deportation, or to give the family time to complete an application to allow the family to stay in Canada on humanitarian compassionate grounds.

When Allen returns to Ottawa on Monday morning, he plans to talk with Kenney to make sure he understands why the Martinez family should be allowed to stay here in Port Colborne.

"We know it, we need to make Minister Kenney understand it now. That's what I'm doing," he said. Monday's endeavour is to make sure he understands that what's needed here is a stay on the deportation until we can finish the humanitarian and compassionate grounds application. Ultimately, the Minister will make the decision.

Allen also urged supporters of the family to call the minister's office at 1-888-242-2100, or to St. Catharines MP Rick Dykstra at 905-934-6787 in St. Catharines, or 1-673-992-3335 in Ottawa. Dykstra is the parliamentary secretary to the Minister of Immigration.

"Make sure you let the minister know you want the Martinez to stay," Allen said.

"I'll be telling the government that this is a couple that has come here to help build this country, just like our forefathers did in 1963," he added.

"As a neighbourhood and community, we just want to stop the deportation," Gardiner said. "I cannot say how proud I am to have them as our neighbours. They are just so wonderful an asset to our community."

Port Colborne makes record book for charity head shaving

FROM PAGE A1

Nancy Salvage, the city's Terry Fox Run co-ordinator, said it was nice to see the football team honour the member of their coach.

"It was very moving to see them up here," she said, referring to the team members.

Salvage said during the past four Terry Fox runs, small groups of people have been getting their heads shaved to start the events. This year, she wanted to go all out.

Initially, she hoped to get 30 people together, all willing to shave their heads. After all, she said it's the 30th anniversary of the event.

But even while they were setting up for the event, she said people arrived with their electric shavers hoping to participate as well.

Salvage was amazed to see so many people willing to shave their heads. She was even more amazed that they didn't blow a fuse using all those electric shavers.

"I was so thrilled when all of those shavers started up and the power stayed on," Salvage said with a laugh. "I hoped this was going to happen and I'm so happy about it."

Joey Crawford, who organized the event, said the Guinness Book of World Records opened a new category for shaving the most people simultaneously, shaving their heads for charity, which means Port Colborne now holds the official record for the achievement.

The amount of money raised during the event was still being tallied up Sunday.

Coffee Break for Alzheimer's

For InPort News

PORT COLBORNE — Coffee Break for Alzheimer's was held at Market Square, and other locations in Port Colborne, last Friday. Co-ordinators Gail Todd, of Mayor Vance Badaway's office, and Ruth Faris, along with volunteers

Margaret Minor and Jane Williams. Coffee breaks were held at Portal Village, Northland Polme, St. John Bosco School, McKiernan Public School, Harvey's

Swiss Chalet, Sobeys, Port Colborne Regional Child Care, Meridian Credit Union in Wainfleet and the Township of Wainfleet.

Volunteers Margaret Minor, Ruth Faris (co-ordinator with Gail Todd of Mayor Badaway's office) and Jane Williams set up the coffee and homemade cookies for the Mayor's Office Coffee Break for Alzheimer's in Market Square on Friday morning. At right, Todd and Faris, along with volunteers Minor and Jane Williams. Minor, Faris and Williams baked cookies to accompany coffee from Ten Thousand Villages brewed by Todd. Other busy bakers were Eleanor Peyton, Donna May, Jean Heils, Gloria Rossman and Noreen Lannan. The efforts of the bakers, who donated the cookies and all the delicious ingredients, contributed to the success of the event, which raised $560 and change.

Fair Trade coffee was served (Ethiopian and Colombian) in cups donated by the local Ten Thousand Villages store on Clarence St. The City of Port Colborne is Ontario's first official Fair Trade city, so of course at special events such as this, only the best Fair Trade coffee and sugar would do.

Terry Fox Run co-ordinator Nancy Salvage (and Fair Trade committee member) stopped by for coffee with Jean Hiles and Carol Kramarich last Friday morning.

Attend the debates

With the election about a month away, residents should plan to attend local debates to hear what the candidates have to say.

While many people have already decided who they are going to vote for, there are many others who have not.

We're appealing to the undecided, and even the decided, to attend the debate in Wainfleet, if you live there, or one of the debates.

It's a chance to hear where candidates stand on certain issues and a chance to see how they answer questions and perform under pressure.

Questions for the debates — Oct. 6 in Wainfleet, and Oct. 13 ad 14 in Port Colborne — can be submitted to Port Colborne-Wainfleet Chamber of Commerce. Contact the chamber or check its website www.pcwchamber.com — to see what the details for submitting are.

Go to the debates and really listen to what each candidate, whether incumbent or challenger, has to say.

Are the answering the questions asked of them? Are they sticking to their message? Are they making promises they won't be able to keep?

Then decide if what they are saying resonates with you and if that is the candidate you want at city hall representing you. Decide if that is the candidate that will help bring the city forward and make Port Colborne a better place to live than it already is.

Fall Fair time

Wainfleet's annual Fall Fair kicked off last night.

The annual fair features Wainfleet and Port Colborne's agricultural side and with this year's corn country theme, organizers are hoping for another successful year.

Wainfleet is an agricultural community, it has fields of various crops all across the township and livestock barns as well.

Though we didn't think of it much, Port Colborne is also an agricultural community.

Ward 4 is full of fields and livestock, as well.

We should all remember that without the fields, farms and farmers, the food that appears in groceries might not be there. Fall fair likes this remind us that buying local, while a popular trend, is still the best choice.

Local food is much fresher than something shipped from California, Mexico or China. And by buying local, we're helping local farmers pay their bills and keeping them producing the food we need.

I'VE BEEN THINKING

Soaking up the rays of the Son

JEEVA SAM

Forks Road East United Church

I was recently reclining comfortably on a rented chair beside my lovely wife Sulojana, protected from the 36 degree Celsius sun by a large umbrella.

A cool breeze from the Atlantic Ocean made the heat quite tolerable, dare I say, enjoyable? The sound of the waves rolling in, the squeals of children feeling the chill of the water, the whistles of lifeguards warning those who had waded past the safety zone, the chatter of adults enjoying each other's company, the sound of the waves, the reality, a symphony of human delight.

Our eyes were treated to a veritable feast of colours — the aquamarine of the ocean, the intermingled shades of beige and black sand on the shore, swirls that seemed the VIBGYOR spectrum and skin the rainbow. I had to touch with shades of yellow and brown thrown in. Of course, you could not miss the reds that showed up in blottches, patches and sections on certain bodies, no matter what the original skin tone happened to be.

Register Canada's gun owners, not their guns

Can owners are uncomfortable about registering each of their long guns, not only because it's costly and cumbersome for the government to do so, but because many of them remember what happened in Europe prior to and during the Second World War.

Jews were ordered to register their firearms and these guns were then seized by the Nazis. Then began the Holocaust when the Jews were rounded up and slaughtered.

The Canadian government, like the German government, also ordered the registration of long guns, the first attempt by the Canadian government to do so. Canadian gun owners in Canada after the war were prompted with an order by the federal politicians to register their sporting firearms without exception.

Canadian veterans returning from the bloodiest war in human history told the Canadian government that veterans were not amused with this Canadian gun registration. They had been told to register and had put their lives on line in crushing the Nazis who had slaughtered millions of people and had required German citizens to register their firearms. The Canadian government of the day in its wisdom allowed that first long gun registry to die.

voiced selections piped through the sound system.

The entire event began with a simple prayer: "Holy Spirit, come." Sometimes the answer to this prayer is accompanied by bubble a.k.a. speaking in tongues and, as on the Day of Pentecost described in Acts 2, a holy convocation.

The music, though, He responded with waves of glory that washed over the room. All we had to do was remain silent and passive, simply absorbing the presence of the Lord Jesus himself.

Does this kind of exposure to Son-light leave visible marks on smokers? And did the smokers travelled all the way from Buffalo to be at this so-called Soakathon for the very first time. They described it like a "beaverwood experience like no other."

Their pastor, upon seeing them on Sunday, wrote: "I saw a peace around both of them."

Yes, soaking in the rays of the Son can indeed bring about tangible transformation to the human body and the Body of Christ.

computers and has cost nearly $2 billion to date to compile and is constantly in a state of change.

The long gun registry has been hacked many times and much personal information has disappeared. Such information is not safe from criminals and probably did the hacking. Legal gun owners are registered by their gun licence without this long gun registry and are immediately known to police at the click of a computer key. Great. Now let's put the money from a redundant long gun registry into arresting gang bangers and other criminals. And in doing so, the police and society will have the full cooperation of the legal firearm community.

Our federal government should allow this long gun registry to die.

Continue to register the firearm owners but not the millions of legal firearms.

■ COLUMN: This may well be the best season of the year

Fall golf and a wedding on the beach

I love fall golf. Only because I hate hot, humid weather.

Fall golf is an opportunity to get a round in during arguably the best time of the year. Well, this and spring.

There is never a better opportunity for fall golf than some of the late-season tournaments that take place at this time of the year.

Last week was the perfect example.

Mayor Vance Badaway and the folks at city hall put on their annual appreciation tournament for all the sponsors that help out with Canal Days.

And there were many, dozens in fact.

With Sandy Pilot, who looks after community partnerships, Gina Murdoch and Allaina Kane, who are the city's special events coordinators, Annette Molenaar, administrative assistant to community and corporate services director Peter Senese and many others from city hall organized the tournament with Whisky Run's Jessica Nieuwland. You know it's going to be a well-run, smooth affair filled with laughter and joy.

And it was.

My foursome included my nephew Steve Snider, my brother-in-law Steve's uncle Larry Snider and our friend Pam Bourque. These are three of the finest, most fun people to be around for a day.

We got there around 11 in time to hit some golf balls before a beautiful lunch of chicken cordon on a bunch with salads and the fixings.

We teed off at 1 in a shotgun format and started laughing halfway down the first fairway and didn't stop until after the 18th green and dinner.

Well, maybe except for the three times that golf balls came whizzing by our heads resulting in a few "ahs." And that's not an exaggeration: three times one or all three of us narrowly missed being beamed by flying golf balls. But even that we managed to laugh at.

The day ended perfectly with a prime rib dinner cut on the deck before we all headed home.

The folks at Whisky Run really know how to do tournaments and do them well. It's always a wonderful experience, from beginning to end.

Last week was no exception. ☺☺☺

A beach wedding in late September? Who says it can't be done?

Certainly not Brent Lindhurst and Amy Bremner, who got married last Saturday in Wainfleet, on Long Beach.

Brent's folks, Brian and Ellen, are dear friends of ours and we were honoured to be invited.

The invitation was adorable. It was a hand-painted beach boy meets animal-loving country girl. Come see what happens in the next chapter, OUR WEDDING!

It was magical. Brian and Ellen own a set of cottages out there that they rent to other couples. They are on a beautiful stretch of Long Beach and it was out behind their house that they set up a huge tent for the festivities.

It was magical, absolutely spellbinding. Brent and Amy are such an amazing couple, not only physically beautiful but very loving, kind and nurturing toward others.

It's one of the reasons there were about 200 people on the beach to share their special day.

Pastor Tom Arth from

Providence Christian Church is a wonderful guy and he came to marry them. Then the party began, complete with a beautiful dinner of shishkabobs, rice, salad and other goodies.

It was by far one of the nicest weddings I've ever had the pleasure of attending. It was emotional, yet classy. It was magical, yet over the top.

As evening rolled in, three beach bonfires were lit and a band began to play for guests in the tent.

I don't use the word "perfect" very often, but this really was.

Oh, and that's Poco at the bottom, one of Amy and Brent's three rescue dogs. The wedding was as beautiful as it looks here.

Showboat is a secret to share

What a wonderful way for two incredibly sweet, kind loving people to start the 'next chapter.'

May they be happy and healthy for decades to come as they grow old together.

—DUMA

Showboat Festival Theatre held its yard sale at The Rosewell Centre last Saturday to clear out some of the old props the theatre company doesn't use anymore and to raise some funds.

Many people donated items to the cause and three people took a advantage of the opportunity to pay a $20 fee and set up tables of their own to sell stuff.

The weather was excellent for the event and it was a buzz of activity. It also gave me the opportunity to catch up with a lot of old friends, including Sue, Jennifer, Mickey Malone, Alana Hoyle and James Brennan.

I miss being on the Showboat board but it was either that or cover this past summer's show for The Tribune. I obviously couldn't do both without being in a conflict of interest.

I've seen lots of live theatre during my life, and Showboat is a world-class organization that doesn't have to take a backstage to anybody.

I only wish more people could get in on the secret and enjoy what we have right here in town. The live-theatre experience is an amazing one.

Oh well, maybe next summer.

He recalled walking home from school as a child, passing a goldfish pond in a neighbour's yard and stopping to see the fish.

"I used to be fascinated by them," he recalled.

That childhood love for goldfish might have helped inspire one of the works of art he recently created, on display at Arts Place at 714 King

St. It's an old antique table that Spengler transformed into a goldfish pond with oil paint.

And it's one of the more than 20 works of art on display at the gallery until Sunday, Oct. 10.

Painting has always been important for Spengler, who retired from the priesthood eight years ago.

As a child he always loved making works of art. As a Catholic priest working at area parishes, including St. Patrick Church in Port Colborne, he said painting helped him unwind and cope with the stress of a vocation that "can wear you down."

Painting, he added, is "a good satisfying hobby that's helped me get through."

Spengler said people often assume that as a priest he would create religion-themed paintings. While he has created a few paintings in the past, he doesn't like to limit himself to one genre.

His recent paintings include the goldfish table, brightly coloured flowers, landscapes and some abstracts.

They are all on sale, ranging from a high of $1,500 for the table to a few hundred dollars for some of the paintings.

■ ELECTION: Wainfleet headquarters opens today; platform to be released

Jeffs wants to run positive mayoral campaign

DAVE JOHNSON
InPort News Staff

WAINFLEET — Vote for positive change.

It's a message up on the wall of April Jeffs' mayoral campaign headquarters at Chambers Corners in Wainfleet.

"I want to run a positive campaign," she said.

If elected mayor, Jeffs wants to build a cohesive team that works together for the township. She's also for openness and transparency.

So far, she said, people have been receptive to her while out in the township. Jeffs plans to get to every home in Wainfleet to put out her message and hear what people have to say.

"I'll be out weekdays, evenings and Saturdays."

If she misses anyone while on the campaign trail, they can visit her at campaign headquarters at 41995 Hwy. 3, behind Pazzo's Pizza at Chambers Corners. Her headquarters will be open Mondays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Wednesdays from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. and Fridays from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m.

"It's accessible and here for people to ask questions."

One of the things she wants to see happen is for the township to get involved in Niagara Region's culture plan. The culture plan is to build upon and co-ordinate the many existing cultural assets and activities to create a shared vision and action plan for culture in Niagara.

"We've lost a lot of industry and we need the culture plan looks at having a more creative economy."

She said Marshville Heritage Festival and Wainfleet Fall Fair are two festivals the township has that can be used to attract more people to Wainfleet and Niagara.

"We have the Feeder Canal that can be used all year round ... Lake Erie, the Wainfleet Bog. If you give people a reason to come, they'll come."

Jeffs said bike tours could run through the township. Agritourism, through tours of local livestock farms, could be promoted as well.

"We have so much to offer." Other issues in her platform include drainage and opportunities for local businesses.

"Drainage is one of the concerns I have heard from the start of my campaign. So one of my goals is to work with the agricultural community to ensure effective drainage within the township."

"I also want to encourage opportunities for Wainfleet businesses to participate in township projects."

Jeffs can also be found on Twitter at http://twitter.com/ AprilJeffs. She has a Facebook group called April Jeffs for Mayor of Wainfleet.

■ ELECTION: Ward 3 candidate says wellness centre must be more affordable

Shibley seeks council comeback

MARYANNE FIRTH
InPort News Staff

POR T COLBORNE — It was the concern of residents that prompted Doug Shibley to enter the race for Ward 3.

The former city councillor, who held the role from 2003 to 2006, said he was not intending to run for council again, but could not ignore the concerns residents brought forward to him — many regarding Port Colborne's proposed health and wellness centre.

Shibley, 71, said everywhere he goes he comes across people who are "afraid" of how council plans to spend funds for the centre.

He's not against the idea of the facility, he said, but would like to see one built that is more affordable and reasonable for a city of Port Colborne's size.

Shibley said even during his time in council chambers from 2003 to 2006, he was against the amount of money a majority of councilors wanted to spend on the project.

"The fact is that I would like to have a $75,000 to $100,000 car, but I just can't afford it."

Though many people in the community would like to have a centre like the one being proposed, they understand it's not within the city's means, he added.

Shibley said facilities of the proposed centre's size are typically used by more than one community when built in a smaller city.

He has doubts that people will travel from outside Port Colborne and Niagara to use the facility. Had Port Colborne accepted Ward 3's offer to team up to build a multi-sports complex, "we would've had the population to make use of the facility 100%," Shibley said.

Also, Shibley said the city has not been budgeting enough for its sidewalks and roads.

The city has been "patching things here and there" because there's not enough funds for that infrastructure, he said.

Shibley said city tax funds and federal gas tax funds that should be allotted for these infrastructure projects are instead being set aside for the health and wellness centre — something he'd like to see change.

Shibley lives on Elm St. with his wife of 51 years, Dolores.

The have two children, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

■ ELECTION: Nora Nater makes bid for Port Colborne Ward 1

Looking 'outside the municipal box' for fresh ideas

MARYANNE FIRTH
InPort News Staff

POR T COLBORNE — Nora Nater wants to bring "experience outside the municipal box" to council chambers.

The 57-year-old Port Colborne native said she's always had interest in "challenges facing all levels of the political arena."

With many children now reaching adulthood, Nater felt now was the perfect time for her to make a bid for the Ward 1 seat.

She said this is a time for "new leadership" and "fresh ideas and perspectives" to be brought forward at city council.

Nater, a member who will "reduce complacency," said, and "foster development" of fresh new approaches to dealing with issues, challenges and ongoing work at hand to the benefit of the community at large."

Port Colborne's citizens deserve better accountability and transparency from council, with "too many behind closed doors" situations" occurring, she said.

Nater said city council needs to offer further clarity in the information it presents to the public, and improve its fiscal responsibility in regards to financial management.

Important community projects, such as the proposed health and wellness centre, must be "representative of all citizens' real expectations and abilities to afford," she said.

If elected, Nater said she will be dedicated to "accurately representing the views and expectations" of constituents in Ward 1 and around the city.

She said she's gained a strong background in political science and public administration through her education and work experience, and will bring business management skills through her own business selling contracts for office furniture across Ontario.

Nater worked for Transport

Canada/Canadian Coast Guard for 12 years, working in program development and human resources.

She has tapped into her entrepreneurial side with Thomas Nater Consultants Inc. and Nater Furniture Sales Inc.

Nater plans to put her business skills to use, focusing on economic development within the city.

She also needs to see new growth in industries and business approaches, and embrace green initiatives, she said.

Supporting the needs of youth in the community is also a focus for Nater, who feels youth are "essential to the vigour and future of our community."

She has been involved in youth-based initiatives for more than 15 years, supporting and participating in the Port Colborne Soccer Club, St. Thomas Canada, and elementary and high school parent councils.

Nater lives on Clarence St. with husband Thomas. They have two sons, Kristen, 28, and Anson, 24.

■ ELECTION: Casey Biko makes bid for Port Colborne Ward 2

Wellness centre decision prompts Biko's candidacy

MARYANNE FIRTH
InPort News Staff

POR T COLBORNE — Casey Biko wants to bring change to council chambers.

While running for council, he had been his own "councillor," Biko decided this was the year to take the leap into municipal politics, entering the race for Ward 2 councillor.

It was council's recent decision to have the proposed health and wellness centre re-tendered and re-engineered that was the deciding factor, he said.

"Enough is enough," he said, adding the project should have been done right the first time.

"The city went too far and now we're paying for their mistake by handing even more money over to consultants," he said.

Biko hopes to focus on replacing existing facilities within the city, which is what he believes Port Colborne can more easily afford.

"We don't need something that's not wanted," he said of the facility's full-build option.

The city is in need of "more efficient and effective government," he said, which he hopes to help provide.

Biko said he's always had an interest in local politics, and "always had concerns."

"I thought it's time to take part instead of being a backseat driver." City hall could "use some new blood," said the 36-year-old, who lives in Ward 2 with his wife Karen and their son Alex, 8.

Biko said his roots grow deep in Ward 2, where his family once had a long-established restaurant, Chip and Dip. Mainly, he previously owned a Cruise and Clean business within the ward. He now works as a production technician at Jungbunzlauer.

"City hall must to a better job listening to residents and being mindful of how it spends taxpayers' money," Biko said.

"For me, the first rule of leadership is to listen. That's what I bring to the table."

He said he would work to create "more productive partnerships" with community agencies in order to help working families in need of some assistance.

■ ELECTION: Frank Danch running in Port Colborne Ward 3

Hardware store owner says he has the tools for change city needs

MARYANNE FIRTH
InPort News Staff

PORT COLBORNE — Frank Danch wants to be a part of Port Colborne's decision-making process.

The 49-year-old business owner has thrown himself into the race to bid for Ward 3 seat, with hopes of bringing positive change to the city.

Danch said he is unhappy with the decisions he's seen

coming from city council chambers.

He said he is pleased with the Main St. community improvement plan that went through council, feeling not enough public input was taken into consideration.

Council needs to do a better job of listening to constituents, he said, adding he believes he can bring the voice of the people of Ward 3 to the table.

Danch runs Frank's Home Building Centre, a Main St. business that has been in his family since 1962.

He said he makes it a point to get to know business owners in the area, as well as residents who frequent his store.

"I deal with people every day. I'm a one-on-one kind of person," he said, adding he plans to keep that philosophy if elected.

Danch hopes to address the issues of spending practices if he obtains the Ward 3 seat.

As a business owner, he said he has a good understanding of how to properly invest and budget funds for various projects, and would like to bring some of his ideas forward.

"There's always a way to cut spending and to improve on what you're doing."

In regards to the proposed health and wellness centre, he questions whether it's necessary to spend as much money as council has suggested to make the facility a reality. He stressed the importance of adapting to bring the city what it needs.

Danch is an avid sports supporter, playing Club Frontenac hockey for more than 30 years and supporting a number of minor-league teams through his business.

■ ELECTION: First political campaign for 78-year-old aldermanic hopeful

De Ruyte promises to bring common sense to Wainfleet council

DAVE JOHNSON
InPort News Staff

WAINFLEET — If elected to township council, Frank De Ruyte says he will use common sense when dealing with issues, fellow aldermen and residents.

"There's five elected people around the table and I'd try my best to work with everyone else," says De Ruyte.

"Everyone has concerns and you have to use common sense and be realistic in dealing with issues."

It's the first time the 78-year-old has run for political office since he came to Canada from Holland in 1953.

"There's a lot of issues on the table in Wainfleet and I figured I'd give council a shot."

De Ruyte, who retired from Maple Leaf Mills (now ADM) 15 years ago, has been attending council meetings for the past two years and is familiar with issues such as the Big Pipe, Lakewood Camp development and official plans.

With Wainfleet's official plan nearly set in place, De Ruyte says the community is "farm country" and needs to be left that way.

He understands certain planning and official plans are dictated by the province and there's not much that can be done to change them.

De Ruyte says the official plan calls for more homes to be built in Wainfleet's plannets over the years and prevent a population increase.

He doesn't believe all of the homes are needed or that the population will increase as much as the plan suggests.

If elected, De Ruyte's sure there'll be criticism of decisions made, but he's not afraid of criticism as long as it's positive.

De Ruyte has been married for nearly 53 years to wife Vicki and they have three daughters and one son, 12 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

He's been a member of the Wainfleet Fall Fair board for 20 years.

What is the importance of healthy eating for denture wearers?

The relation between significant tooth loss and the ability to chew fresh fruits, vegetables and meats, has a great impact on the nutritional value of one's diet. Toothless or partially edentulous individuals are at a higher risk of malnutrition. Edentulous individuals with poor nutrition intake may be at higher risk for a variety of diseases. For example those who consume little vitamin A are at a higher risk for various forms of cancer, heart disease and rheumatoid arthritis. Similarly the dietary deficiencies of vitamin E are associated with various cancers, heart and Parkinson's Disease and low vitamin C and thiamine levels lead to a reduced immune system function, cardiovascular disease, hypertension and nausea, constipation as well as appetite and weight loss. Another ill effect of a low nutrient diet is a loss of muscle mass and strength caused by inadequate intake of protein, which could further increase frailty. An increased intake of fat and cholesterol observed in toothless patients have been associated with obesity, diabetes mellitus, as well as arteriosclerosis.

What can I do to prevent any of this happening to me?

Considering the vast implications of a low nutrient diet, it is worth acknowledging that nutritional balance and good health can be significantly improved and restored with the use of a well made denture, and a vitamin supplement regime planned by your doctor. A well made denture, will allow you to interact back into your diet all the nutritionally laden foods such as fresh fruits and vegetables, proteins and nuts that were avoided when chewing with an ill-fitting, poorly designed denture. Individuals with implant supported dentures, greatly improve their food choices by including more hard to chew foods that are rich in nutrients, therefore greatly improving their health status.

To switch to a more balanced diet may be as easy as having well fitted dentures, that allow for improved chewing and grinding function. The ability to better chew fruits, vegetables, meats and nuts will increase your nutrient intake and may decrease your risk of various disease. For more information see your Denturist.

■ ELECTION: 22 years in same role he first won by a single vote

Dekker wants to continue Catholic board work

KAESHA FORAND
InPort News Staff

PORT COLBORNE — For more than 20 years, John Dekker has been part of Niagara Catholic District School Board decision making.

He hopes to again have the opportunity to represent Port Colborne, Welland and Fort Erie trustees if re-elected to his trustee position.

His reasons for running are the same they were 22 years ago when he won by one vote during the 1988 election.

"The main reason is the kids first. It's always been about serving children of the community and it will always be first and foremost," he said.

"Kids can stay first, politicians can stay out of it."

When he was first elected to the board, schools were focused on academics with little focus on trades.

"Now, I think we're

one of the better

boards

with diversify in the various technology curriculum.

Dekker is a mink farmer.

He is married to Ann and has four children — Tony, Mathew, Carolyn, Jeannette and two granddaughters.

Having experience running his own business, he says he can contribute to the community and also has much experience.

For the board, Dekker has served six years as vice-chair and two years as chair, in 2001 and 2002.

He also chairs committee-of-the-whole meetings.

He isn't running any elections because he has accomplished as a team of trustees.

The board "acts as one," Dekker says.

With the start of the school year, he's looking forward to the implementation of the board's Vision

2020 Strategic Plan and was happy with the public input that went into the process.

Retired teacher seeks public school board trustee spot

MARYANNE FIRTH
InPort News Staff

FORT COLBORNE — For Michael Kamatovic, it's all about the kids.

The 67-year-old retired high school teacher wants to see District School Board of Niagara students provided with the best education and opportunity.

Kamatovic is making a play for the position of trustee, in hopes of representing Port Colborne and Fort Erie.

He sought the trustee seat in 2006, but was ineligible to become a candidate because he was on the board's supply list at the time.

This election, however, he's determined to bring positive change to the public school board.

Kamatovic taught at the high school level for 35 years, spending a majority of his teaching career at Fort Erie Secondary School.

There "have to be alternative ways" to resolve issues with declining enrolment before closing schools, he said. "We have to find those ways."

Kamatovic said he's heard from residents within the Fort Erie and Port Colborne communities who are concerned schools may be closed just as the municipal emergency department in the two municipalities have been closed.

"They say 'if we lose our schools, we lose our identity.' We need to protect, promote and preserve public education in this area."

Kamatovic said the board needs to be cautious on how it spends its funds.

"All available money should be directed to the classes."

■ TRANSPORTATION: Information sessions to prepare aging motorists
Seniors taught what to expect when taking driver's licence test

InPort News Staff

PORT CARES — As seniors age, their driving skills aren't as sharp as they once were.

Aging and medication both affect a person's ability to drive. Seniors should know about the Ministry of Transportation of Ontario testing requirements for mature drivers.

To help inform seniors and their families about the issue, Seniors in Action, in partnership with Le Centre Polyvalent Des Aînés Francophones and the Friends over 55 Social Club, is holding two senior motorist sessions.

Port Cares volunteer co-ordinator

Rachelle Anderson said the MTO will lead the sessions, presenting what is to be expected when seniors take driving tests and how to prepare for them.

A pharmacist will speak about how medications affect driving. Niagara Regional Police will also be on hand.

Sessions will be held Thursday, Sept. 30, from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., at the Wainfleet arena, 1943 Park St., and on Wednesday, Oct. 27, from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., at the Silver 55, 554 Fledden Ave., Port Colborne.

Registration is required. Call 905-834-3629 ext. 262. The free information sessions are not only open to seniors, but also to family members or caregivers.

WAINFLEET FALL FAIR

Wainfleet is set for annual fall fair

KAESHA FORAND
InPort News Staff

WAINFLEET — The Wainfleet Fall Fair is a true testament to the township's agricultural roots.

The annual fair features Wainfleet and Port Colborne's agricultural side with a focus on the fair's corn theme, organizers are hoping for another successful year.

Fall fair board president David Wyatt said the 43rd annual fair is bigger and better than ever and is hoping for 6,000 people to attend between Thursday Sept. 23 to Saturday Sept. 25.

He said some new events to this year's fair includes three age categories for the corn eating contest, including one for children aged six to 12, 13 to 16 and 19 and up, calf and horselassoing and in honour of the fair's corn theme, a corn eating contest will be held Saturday at 5 p.m., where contestants will try and eat the most corn in three minutes.

Wyatt said perennial favorites including the antique tractor pull, 4-H exhibits, scarecrow decorating contest, kids pedal tractor pull, pony rides, pony pull, teen dance, Saturday morning pancake breakfast and many other events.

The parade at St. Elizabeth school will begin format he rear of the school and make its way up the front street.

"It should be comparable to last year, if not more," he said of the parade.

Last year's events drew about 3,800 people because of bad weather and Wyatt is hoping to draw thousands to the township's downtown core, near town hall and the arena.

"There are lots of entries with fruits and veggies."

Wyatt, who has been at the helm of the fair for five years, is happy to say the fair is debt-free, out of debt, a proud feat since their funds can be used to improve the festival.

"It allows us to put more into the fair," he said.
